

THE CNMV RENEWS ITS CORPORATE WEBSITE

06 February 2023

The Spanish National Securities Market Commission (CNMV) has published its new website after undergoing a renewal for its modernisation and improve users' experience. The www.cnmv.es website updated its design and modified its structure to adjust to the current online trends, in addition to incorporating new browsing features. The modifications have also improved the site's accessibility.

CNMV's website is one of the main channels to promote the transparency of the Spanish securities market and information for investors and general market participants.

The new website design responds to three goals:

- Highlight information on the actions and decisions made by the CNMV regarding the information that issuers distribute through the website;
- Facilitate access to information aimed to retail investors;
- Streamline the browsing menu reducing clicks and improve visuals in all mobile devices, telephones, tablets, laptops, etc.

A new feature worth highlighting is the addition of direct access to the investors and financial education section to the website's header, in order to bring the content of this section closer to retail investors and/or consumers in a more agile and intuitive way. This makes resources more easily accessible to citizens, as to improve their education in this area and provide better tools to avoid becoming victims of fraud.

Moreover, new carousels have been included to make the home page more dynamic and provide the user with more insider and other relevant information directly, without having to access other pages.

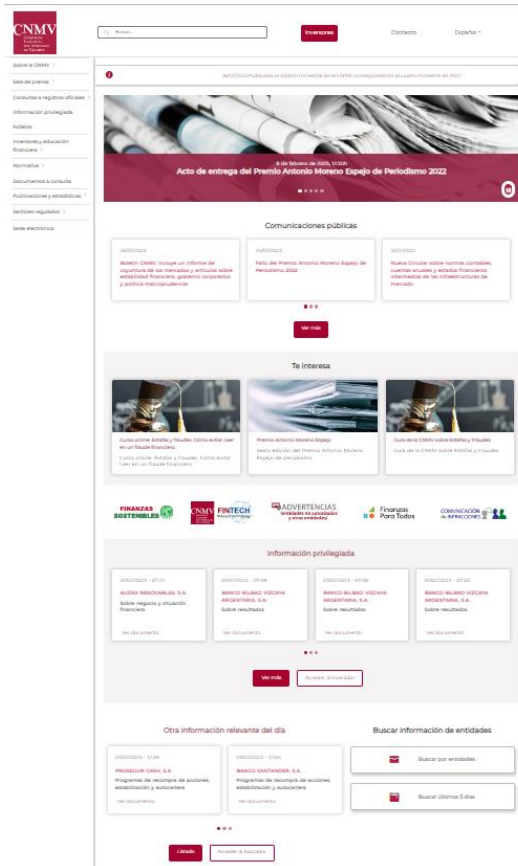

The website's navigation menu has also been modified and the content has been reorganised, incorporating a new section, Regulated sectors, as a means of accessing information on regulated entities. A new individual link to the institution's publications has also been created.

Over the last three years, the number of visits to the CNMV website has continued growing, reaching 720 million in 2022, reflecting investors and market participants' interest in the information and possibilities offered.

Further improvements, such as a new search engine, audiovisual content formats, etc., will be implemented in the coming weeks.
