OVERVIEW

- On Dec. 6, 2010, we updated the criteria we use for assessing counterparty risk.
- The concept of counterparty replacement in a structured finance security is the overarching principle behind our counterparty criteria.
- The most significant changes in the new criteria are the analytical components in a replacement framework, such as replacement and remedy language, replacement time frames, collateral posting levels, eligible collateral, and documentation.
- If an ineligible counterparty does not replace itself with an eligible counterparty and if, in our view, there are no mitigating factors, we would likely lower the rating on the supported securities.
- On Feb. 22, we lowered our ratings on three Spanish banks: Banco Popular Espanol, S.A, Confederacion Espanola de Cajas de Ahorros, and Caja de Ahorros y Pensiones de Barcelona, which act as counterparties in various transactions.
- In our view, the exposure to counterparty risk has increased and we have thus placed or kept on CreditWatch negative our ratings on 27 tranches in 22 Spanish transactions in accordance with our updated counterparty criteria.

LONDON (Standard & Poor's) March 11, 2011--Standard & Poor's Ratings Services today placed or kept on CreditWatch negative its credit ratings on 27 tranches

Ratings On 27 Tranches In 22 Spanish Transactions Placed On CreditWatch Negative After Downgrade Of 3 Spanish Banks in 22 Spanish transactions for counterparty reasons.

Today's rating action follow the downgrade of Spanish banks, which act as counterparties in these transactions (see "Negative Rating Actions Taken On Four Spanish Banks In The Context Of A Difficult 2011," published on Feb. 22, 2011).

The complete list of public ratings affected by today's rating actions is available in "Spanish Structured Finance CreditWatch Actions In Connection With Revised Counterparty Criteria—March 11, 2011," published today.

On Jan. 18, we placed on CreditWatch negative all "affected" classes of notes in structured finance transactions when our updated counterparty criteria became effective (see "EMEA Structured Finance CreditWatch Actions In Connection With Revised Counterparty Criteria"). Among other things, the affected classes had a rating the same as or lower than one rating level above the issuer credit rating (ICR) on the lowest-rated counterparty to which they are exposed (see "Counterparty And Supporting Obligations Methodology And Assumptions," published on Dec. 6, 2010).

On the Jan. 18 effective date, we did not place or keep these 27 ratings on CreditWatch negative as they were not affected at that time. However, following the downgrade of the Spanish banks, which in some cases are the lowest-rated counterparty in these transactions, the ratings on these 27 tranches are now above the ICR on the lowest-rated counterparty to which they are exposed.

We have therefore placed or kept our ratings on these 27 tranches on CreditWatch negative.

We intend to resolve these CreditWatch placements by the transition date of July 18, 2011.

Spanish Structured Finance CreditWatch Actions In Connection With Revised Counterparty Criteria—March 11, 2011

On Dec. 6, 2010, we updated the criteria we use for assessing counterparty risk (see "Counterparty And Supporting Obligations Methodology And Assumptions"). On Feb. 22, 2011, we lowered our ratings on three Spanish banks, which act as counterparties in various transactions. Based on our analysis, under the updated criteria we have placed or kept on CreditWatch negative 27 affected Spanish structured finance ratings.

The table below provides the transaction names, series, and ratings for the affected Spanish transactions. For the related media release, see "Ratings On 27 Tranches In 22 Spanish Transactions Placed On CreditWatch Negative After Downgrade Of 3 Spanish Banks," published on March 11, 2011."
