Announcement: Moody's reviews for downgrade 112 Spanish RMBS notes following the downgrade of the Kingdom of Spain

Global Credit Research - 04 Nov 2011

Seven tranches in six Spanish ABS also placed on downgrade review as part of wider sector review

Madrid, November 04, 2011 – Moody's Investors Service has today placed on review for downgrade the ratings of 112 tranches in 77 residential mortgage-backed securities (RMBS) due to low credit enhancement. Today's action follows Moody's two-notch downgrade of the rating of the government of the Kingdom of Spain to A1 with a negative outlook, from Aa2. For full details, please refer to "Moody's downgrades Spain's government bond rating to A1 with a negative outlook," and "Moody's assesses the impact on Spanish structured finance transactions following sovereign downgrade," both published on 18 October 2011.

The full list of affected RMBS ratings by tranche is detailed in the following link:

http://moody.com/viewresearchdoc.aspx?docid=PBS_SF266602

Seven tranches in six Spanish ABS have also been placed on downgrade review as part of wider sector review; for full details please refer to "Moody's reviews for downgrade 7 Spanish ABS notes following the downgrade of the Kingdom of Spain", published on 4 November 2011.

Moody's expects that it will conclude the rating reviews within six months. Moody's anticipates that following its review of each transaction's ability to withstand severe stress scenarios, it will confirm a number of the ratings it has today placed on review for downgrade because of credit enhancement build up or other structural aspects. Additionally, Moody's expects that Aaa (sf) notes will suffer a limited rating migration into the Aa (sf) category.

As previously stated on 18 October 2011, Moody's believes that a Aaa(sf) rating remains possible for Spanish structured finance transactions that (i) benefit from sufficient credit enhancement; and (ii) have highly rated transaction parties or appropriate structural mitigants in place. Structural features and credit enhancement will continue to help mitigate the effects of deteriorating collateral risk and potential performance disruption in a severe event and the level of uncertainty around these scenarios. We discussed the relationship between sovereign ratings and structured finance ratings in Moody's Special Report "Assessing the Impact of the Eurozone Sovereign Debt Crisis on Structured Finance Transactions," published in April 2011.

RATINGS RATIONALE

Today's action primarily reflects the increased risk that the factors driving the downgrade of the Spanish sovereign may lead to a significant and uniform deterioration in Spanish RMBS asset performance. Whilst the probability of such extreme events remains very low, it has reached a point where current levels of credit enhancement and structural protection for highly rated senior notes are, in some cases, insufficient to support the highest rating levels of Aaa(sf) and Aa(sf).

Moody's believes that for Spanish RMBS to achieve a Aaa(sf) rating the minimum level of credit enhancement should be in the range of 15% to 20% depending on pool characteristics. For today's action, Moody's assessed the Aaa(sf) ratings of Spanish RMBS tranches with credit enhancement levels in or below the minimum range listed above. In addition, Moody's focused on tranches rated in the Aa(sf) category that have credit enhancement below 70% of the minimum ranges listed above.

Moody's is maintaining its Aaa(sf) rating on a number of transactions with credit enhancement levels lower than the minimum range of 15% to 20% because of the significant differences in the quality of portfolios of different Spanish originators. In its assessment of RMBS transactions, Moody's considered the vintage of the deal, the current collateral performance and the increase in credit enhancement expected over the near term. In addition, Moody's did not place on review for downgrade senior notes with very short remaining lives.

In relation to RMBS transactions originated on or before 2005 with good asset performance and highly seasoned collateral, Moody's is maintaining the Aaa(sf) rating for notes with a credit enhancement equal or greater than 10% and the ratings in the Aa(sf) category for notes with a credit enhancement equal or greater than 7%. Moody's has placed on review for downgrade the notes in 15 transactions that did not meet these criteria. Moody's has also placed on review the senior note of TDACAM5 which has relatively low credit enhancement to mitigate the below average collateral performance.

In the case of transactions closed on or after 2006, Moody's has placed on review for downgrade (i) the Aaa(sf) for most notes with credit enhancement below 15%; and (ii) notes rated in the Aa(sf) category with credit enhancement below 10.5%. In the case of transactions with below average collateral performance, Moody's has placed on review for downgrade the Aaa(sf) notes with credit enhancement below 20% and notes rated in Aa(sf) category with credit enhancement below 14%.

Key modelling assumptions, sensitivities, cash-flow analysis and stress scenarios have not been updated as today's action has been primarily driven by (i) credit enhancement tests; and (ii) Moody's assessment of the collateral performance and pool characteristics.

Uncertainty mainly stems from the negative outlook on the Spanish government's debt rating that reflects ongoing economic and financial risks in Spain. For full details, please refer to "Moody's downgrades Spain's government bond rating to A1 with a negative outlook". The highest achievable structured finance rating for Spanish structured finance transactions may be revised progressively downwards if the likelihood of those events were to increase.

PRINCIPAL METHODOLOGIES

The principal methodology used in these ratings was Moody's Approach to Rating RMBS in Europe, Middle East, and Africa published in October 2009. Please see the Credit Policy page on www.moody's.com for a copy of this methodology.

In addition, the minimum credit enhancement required for each RMBS transaction in markets exposed to country-specific systemic risk is determined based on the assumptions with regards to the potential losses on the residential mortgage portfolios in case of a severe country-specific event. This minimum credit enhancement varies by country and it can be adjusted to take into account collateral quality. These adjustments are not expected to result in significant variations in minimum credit enhancements required for different RMBS transactions in countries such as Spain.

MIS, a wholly-owned credit rating agency subsidiary of Moody's Corporation ("MCO"), hereby discloses that most issuers of debt securities (including corporate and municipal bonds, debentures, notes and commercial paper) and preferred stock rated by MIS have, prior to assignment of any rating, agreed to pay to MIS for appraisal and rating services rendered by it fees ranging from $1,500 to approximately $2,500,000. MCO and MIS also maintain policies and procedures to address the independence of MIS's ratings and rating processes. Information regarding certain affiliations that may exist between directors of MCO and rated entities, and between entities who hold ratings from MIS and have also publicly reported to the SEC an ownership interest in MCO of more than 5%, is posted annually at www.moody's.com under the heading "Shareholder Relations — Corporate Governance — Director and Shareholder Affiliation Policy."
