OVERVIEW

- At the end of 2011, we took rating actions on several Spanish banks following the application of our revised bank criteria and the CreditWatch negative placement of the Kingdom of Spain.
- As a consequence of those rating actions, on Dec. 23, 2011, we placed on CreditWatch negative our ratings on 20 tranches in 11 Spanish SME transactions, due to the existing link between those tranches and the downgraded counterparties.
- On Feb. 13, 2012, we resolved most of the CreditWatch placements of the ratings on the Spanish banks, and in all cases lowered the ratings.
- We have today taken rating actions on 10 tranches in seven Spanish SME transactions, where there is a direct ratings link between the rating on a tranche and the rating actions on the related counterparties, based on the application of our 2010 counterparty criteria.
- After today's rating actions, our ratings on 19 tranches in 10 transactions remain on CreditWatch negative. Either remedy actions have not been finalized yet, they have substantial support under our 2010 counterparty criteria, or we are finalizing our assessment of the effect that the bank downgrades may have on the transactions.

MADRID (Standard & Poor's) Feb. 27, 2012--Standard & Poor's Ratings Services today took various credit rating actions on 10 tranches in seven Spanish small and midsize enterprise (SME) asset-backed securities transactions.

Specifically, we:

- Lowered and removed from CreditWatch negative our rating on one tranche in one transaction; and
- Lowered our ratings on nine tranches in six transactions.

For the full list of today's rating actions, see "List Of Spanish SME Counterparty-Related Rating Actions--Feb. 27, 2012."

On Dec. 23, 2011, we placed 20 tranches in 11 Spanish SME transactions on CreditWatch negative due to either the downgrade of a counterparty involved, or to the fact that the remedy period had not elapsed (see "Ratings On 19 Tranches In 11 Spanish SME Transactions Placed On CreditWatch Negative After Bank Rating Actions," published on Dec. 23, 2011).

On Feb. 13, 2012, we resolved the CreditWatch placement of most of the ratings on the Spanish banks and we further downgraded these counterparties.

In assessing the effect of any bank downgrades on our structured finance ratings, we apply our 2010 counterparty criteria (see "Counterparty And Supporting Obligations Methodology And Assumptions," published on Dec. 6, 2010, and "Counterparty And Supporting Obligations Update," published on Jan. 13, 2011).

Today's rating actions partially resolve the CreditWatch placements we made in December 2011. We have lowered and removed from CreditWatch negative our rating on one tranche in one Spanish SME transaction, where we consider there to be a direct ratings link between the rating on the tranche and the rating on the related counterparty.

Today we have also lowered our ratings on nine tranches in six transactions, due to the most recent bank rating actions that have resulted in additional tranches being linked to the rating on the related counterparty.

After today's rating actions, 19 tranches in 10 transactions remain on CreditWatch negative. Either remedy actions have not been finalized, they have substantial support under our 2010 counterparty criteria, or we are completing our assessment of the effect that the bank downgrades may have on the transactions.
