Moody's downgrades senior ratings of 25 Spanish banks

Madrid, June 15, 2009 -- Moody's Investors Service today downgraded the senior unsecured debt and deposit ratings of 25 Spanish banks -- 18 by one notch and seven institutions by two notches. At the same time, Moody's downgraded the Bank Financial Strength Ratings of 30 banks. Among these banks, the rating agency downgraded the dated subordinated debt of 17 institutions, the junior subordinated debt of eight institutions, and the preference shares of 14 banks.

"The rising pressure that many Spanish banks face from a sharp deterioration of their asset quality is reflected in their stand-alone financial strength ratings, a third of which now fall at a "D-" level or lower," said Maria Cabanyes, a Senior Vice President at Moody's. "However, the moderate downgrade of these banks' senior ratings reflects our expectation that government support would be forthcoming for these institutions should such support become necessary."

This rating action concludes the review initiated on May 19, 2009. Eight banks however, continue to have some or all of their ratings under review for further possible downgrade, as outlined in the ratings list below.

DOWNGRADE OF THE BANK FINANCIAL STRENGTH RATING

The Bank Financial Strength Ratings (BFSR) of 30 banks have been downgraded, with six institutions downgraded by one notch, eight by two notches, eight by three notches and eight by four notches. The downgrades are driven by the speed and depth of the deterioration of the Spanish economy and the impact on banks' balance sheets.

Spanish GDP has declined by 3% in the first quarter of 2009. The unemployment rate stood at 17.4% at the end of the first quarter up from 8.6% at the end of 2007 and is expected to be close to 19% by the end of this year.

In concert with these broader economic pressures, the banks' asset quality indicators continue to point towards a further significant deterioration. The system-wide non-performing loan rate has deteriorated to 4.27% at end of the first quarter of 2009, up from 0.9% in December 2007 and 3.37% in December 2008.

"The extra cushion (i.e. the anti-cyclical provisions) that banks had built up over the years against such risks - which has so far protected their earnings and capital bases -- is becoming increasingly thin," said Maria Jose Mori, Assistant Vice President and lead analyst for some of the affected banks.

While some banks have initiated capital boosting measures, such as through issuance of preference shares or divestment of some of their investment portfolios, Moody's remains concerned that the overall pressure on capital has so far not been sufficiently addressed and resolved by the Spanish banks.

"Unless some supportive measures are taken by third parties -- by owners, or likely by the government -- some banks' capital cushions will soon be affected by asset impairments and provisioning requirements," Moody's Mori added.

Of those 30 affected banks, only 4 have remained rated at C or above, whereas 17 are now rated between C- and D, and nine are rated D- or E+. Banks with a BFSR of C or above are generally expected to be resilient against even a stress scenario. Banks rated between C- and the higher end of D+ are generally expected to withstand reasonably well Moody's anticipated case loss assumptions, but could come under material pressure in a more severe scenario. Banks rated between the lower end of D+ and E+ levels display more modest fundamentals in the anticipated scenario and are highly sensitive to a more stressed scenario, resulting in an increased likelihood that third-party support would be required. Moreover, while Moody's loss estimates often indicate a similar magnitude of potential capital shortfalls for D- and E+ rated banks, those banks rated D- seem to have a more robust business model and overall stronger risk profile, which Moody's would expect to emerge from any restructuring or recapitalisation with less structural changes required.

The outlook on all BFSRs is negative, reflecting primarily the vulnerability of these banks to a further deterioration of the operating environment. However, Moody's also noted that a significant government capital injection - which apparently has been discussed for some time now by the Spanish government and the banking sector -- could prompt subsequent upgrades of some BFSRs. The conditions under which such a support package is extended would need to be closely examined, Moody's added.

DOWNGRADE OF LONG-TERM DEBT AND DEPOSIT RATINGS

Due to a heightened likelihood of systemic support in this crisis, the impact of the BFSR downgrades has not translated into a similar downgrade of the banks' senior debt and deposit ratings. Eighteen institutions have been downgraded by one notch, and seven institutions have been downgraded by two notches.

Moody's explained that the expectation of support from the highly-rated Spanish government underpins the investment-grade ratings of these banks.

"We believe that the Spanish government is both willing and able to support its banking system if and when required," Moody's Cabanyes said. The banking system's potential capital requirements in and of itself should not put undue pressure on the government's financial flexibility, Moody's added.

The differentiation of senior debt and deposit ratings for banks with the same BFSR reflects Moody's expectation that banks will continue to receive or are likely to receive support depending on their level of systemic importance -- even beyond the current crisis. Moody's measures this systemic importance in terms of deposit and loan market shares, at both a regional and a nationwide level. Such measures of systemic importance in some instances can result in an uplift of such an institution's rating by several notches. This expectation of institution-specific systemic relevance has not changed and is also indicated in Moody's published Credit Opinions for each bank.

DOWNGRADE OF SUBORDINATED DEBT AND HYBRID RATINGS

The downgrade of the dated subordinated debt instruments of these institutions is driven by the same factors considered in the downgrade of the senior unsecured debt. These dated subordinated debt instruments continue to be rated one notch lower than the senior debt instruments of the same bank based on subordination.

Moody's sees the risk on the junior subordinated debt instruments in the unlikely event of liquidation as slightly higher than that of dated subordinated debt. The risk of coupon deferral and of loss absorption under a going concern-assumption is more limited than for preference shares given the junior subordinateds' perpetual, cumulative and optional deferral triggers. Nevertheless, the risk of such losses has increased. These two considerations have led to the downgrade of these instruments, which are now rated one notch lower than dated subordinated debt for banks with a BFSR of at least C-, and two notches lower for banks with a BFSR of D+ and below.

The risk profile for the preference shares is different than that of the subordinated instruments. The coupons are non-cumulative and have a mandatory deferral trigger, which is a P&L loss (or regulatory capital shortfall). Given the heightened possibility of a net loss for many of these banks, Moody's has applied an Expected Loss analysis to these instruments to capture the higher risk of coupon deferral, with the probability of a coupon deferral being linked to the strength of the bank as reflected in its BFSR.

NO WARRANTY, EXPRESS OR IMPLIED, AS TO THE ACCURACY, TIMELINESS, COMPLETENESS, MERCHANTABILITY OR FITNESS FOR ANY PARTICULAR PURPOSE OF ANY SUCH RATING OR OTHER OPINION OR INFORMATION IS GIVEN OR MADE BY MOODY'S IN ANY FORM OR MANNER WHATSOEVER. Each rating or other opinion must be weighed solely as one factor in any investment decision made by or on behalf of any user of the information contained herein, and each such user must accordingly make its own study and evaluation of each security and of each issuer and guarantor of, and each provider of credit support for, each security that it may consider purchasing, holding or selling.

MOODY'S hereby discloses that most issuers of debt securities (including corporate and municipal bonds, debentures, notes and commercial paper) and preferred stock rated by MOODY'S have, prior to assignment of any rating, agreed to pay to MOODY'S for appraisal and rating services rendered by it fees ranging from $1,500 to approximately $2,400,000. Moody's Corporation (MCO) and its wholly-owned credit rating agency subsidiary, Moody's Investors Service (MIS), also maintain policies and procedures to address the independence of MIS's ratings and rating processes. Information regarding certain affiliations that may exist between directors of MCO and rated entities, and between entities who hold ratings from MIS and have also publicly reported to the SEC an ownership interest in MCO of more than 5%, is posted annually on Moody's website at www.moody's.com under the heading "Shareholder Relations - Corporate Governance - Director and Shareholder Affiliation Policy."
