OVERVIEW

- We have taken various rating actions in 28 Spanish multi-cédulas transactions that we placed on CreditWatch positive or negative on March 20, 2014.
- We have lowered our ratings in 20 transactions, raised our ratings in five, and affirmed our ratings in the other three.
- These rating actions affect about €49.15 billion of multi-cédulas bonds.
- The rating actions reflect the impact on multi-cédulas transactions of changes in the credit quality of the collateral backing these transactions, and, in some cases, the shorter time to maturity compared with our 2013 review.

MADRID (Standard & Poor's) April 15, 2014--Standard & Poor's Ratings Services today took various rating actions in 28 Spanish multi-cédulas transactions that we placed on CreditWatch positive or negative on March 20, 2014.

For the full list of today's rating actions see "Spanish Multi-Cédulas Rating Actions As Of April 15, 2014," published today.

Spanish multi-cédulas can be described as repackaging of Spanish mortgage-backed covered bonds (cédulas hipotecarias). Our ratings in multi-cédulas transactions reflect our assumptions of an expected full recovery on the underlying cédula if the underlying issuer defaults. The ratings also take into account whether the extension of the scheduled maturity of the multi-cédulas, coupled with a dedicated reserve fund or liquidity line, is able to mitigate potential interest shortfalls. These features are designed to facilitate ongoing timely payment according to the multi-cédulas' original terms and conditions.

The ratings in Spanish multi-cédulas transactions are affected by different rating factors that need to be reviewed to assess the rating level at which the current credit enhancement is commensurate. These rating factors include changes to our credit estimates and ratings on the underlying assets, changes in the asset concentration in the transactions, and the shorter time to maturity of multi-cédulas compared with our previous analysis.

In March 2014, we took into account the combination of these positive and negative factors to determine the likely direction of a rating action on these transactions. As a result, we affirmed our ratings in 13 multi-cédulas transactions and placed our ratings in the remaining multi-cédulas transactions on CreditWatch positive or negative (see "Ratings In 43 Spanish Mortgage Multi-Cédulas Covered Bond Transactions Affirmed Or Placed On CreditWatch, March 20, 2014).

In order to resolve the different CreditWatch placements we used our CDO Evaluator credit risk model (see Spain Embraces Structural Diversity In The Securitization Of Covered Bonds, published Dec. 2, 2004). Analyzing the risk factors mentioned above within the framework of our model determined the scenario default rate (SDR) of each multi-cédula transaction. The SDR is one of the driving variables that we use in order to assess whether the credit enhancement available to each transaction is commensurate with its rating.

The probability of default assumed in our analysis increases when our credit estimates and ratings on the underlying assets of the multi-cédulas deteriorate and when the concentration risk is higher. This was the case for 20 multi-cédulas, where their SDR had increased since our previous analysis. The positive effect of upcoming maturities and, in some cases, a lower credit risk profile, led to a decrease in the SDR of five multi-cédulas. In other cases, the SDR remained stable because some of the positive and negative rating factors offset each other.

To assess whether the liquidity support provided was commensurate with our ratings we compared the available liquidity line or reserve fund with the stressed interest that might need to be paid if a multi-cédulas issuer defaults. We assessed the liquidity support level as the product of the stressed interest rate to be paid on the multi-cédulas, the SDR, and the recovery period.

As a result of this analysis we:

- Lowered and removed from CreditWatch negative our ratings in 20 multi-cédulas;
- Raised and removed from CreditWatch positive our ratings in five multi-cédulas; and

- Affirmed and removed from CreditWatch negative our ratings in three multi-cédulas.

We will continue to monitor these transactions on an ongoing basis until the notes mature or are otherwise retired, taking into account developments in the credit quality of the collateral, analyzing regular fund manager reports, and monitoring supporting ratings.

The ratings in some of these transactions are capped at 'AA-' under our nonsovereign ratings criteria for rating issues higher than the related sovereign (see "Nonsovereign Ratings That Exceed EMU Sovereign Ratings: Methodology And Assumptions," published on June 14, 2011).

POTENTIAL EFFECTS OF PROPOSED CRITERIA CHANGES

Our ratings are based on our applicable criteria, including those set out in the criteria article "Nonsovereign Ratings That Exceed EMU Sovereign Ratings: Methodology And Assumptions," published on June 14, 2011. However, please note that this criteria piece is under review (see "Request For Comment: Methodology And Assumptions For Ratings Above The Sovereign--Single Jurisdiction Structured Finance," published on Oct. 14, 2013).

As a result of this review, our future criteria applicable to rating above the sovereign may differ from our current criteria. These criteria changes may affect the ratings in the outstanding multi-cédulas transactions. Until such time that we adopt new criteria, we will continue to rate and surveil these multi-cédulas transactions using our existing criteria (see "Related Criteria").
